An active strong market, with few changes in values, covers the local situation. Seldom do prices in important lines move along with so much steadiness as for some months past, but the fact is that prices have reached such a high range that to advance them further would curtail trade. There is no inclination to drop prices on account of overstocks. Especially is this true of the dry goods market, in which strong prices are the marked feature. In groceries trade is so active that the wholesale merchant is quite contented with the small margins he obtains under present conditions. The confectioners report business as good for the season of the year, and prices cut less by competition than usual. The iron and steel markets are very volume. On Commission row it was a busy day, the retail merchants and market men stocking up heavily for Saturday's trade. Prices on fruits and potatoes are very firm at quotations. Green stuff is selling at very reasonable prices. Strawberries are still high enough not to admit of large sale. The produce market is seldom as active as of late. Poultry is scarce and high. Choice butter is in good request at prices quoted, and eggs are firmer, advancing to 121/2c, paid by shippers, who this year have made a mistake in expecting a break in the market to much lower prices. Provisions are rapid movers, taking the place of fresh meats. The seed market is active and prices rule steady on all descriptions. Leather and hides are weak and little is
